of former Senator Chandler, one of whose statements respecting the recent conferences on the railroad rate bill at the White House was characterized by the President as an absolute and in-qualified faisehood.

London, May 16.—The rapidity with which Great Britain is removing from the navy all but her really efficient warships was evidenced by a statement president and Attorney-General Moody and Senators Tillman and Bailey. Mr. Tillman said he would not read the whole of it, and then he proceeded to give that part which has already been removed from the list since 1902. Tillman said he would not read the whole of it, and then he preceded to give that part which has already been given to the press, beginning with the receipt of the note from Secretary Look asking Mr. Chandler to call at the White

> The statement continued with Chaniler's reiteration of the statement that the President named Senators Spooner, Knox and Foraker as threatening the railroad bill with ingenious constitu-tional arguments, and declaring that he (the President) had broken with them.

Mr. Tillman said it was not necessary to continue further with Chandler's written record. Mr. Tillman then said: "I now and here declare most emphatically that to no human being have I President any wish on my part to enter into negotiations with him on this bill. One the contrary I have at various times asserted to various persons that I did not think it proper for the President to discuss pending legislation with Sena-tors in this manner. The statement that I sent anybody to him is absurd on its Another point to which Tillman called attention was the "cavalier way" in which Attorney-General Moody states that the President was not bound to any agreement. "Evidently Mr. Moody was aroused yesterday at the believes that the code of honor among gentlemen is not binding on the President of the United States or in his for the District of Columbia by the Cabinet.
